OOH my, Uma, what's up with your face?

When 44-year-old Uma Thurman stepped out at the premiere party for NBC's new miniseries The Slap, she turned heads for all the wrong reasons!

The once-natural beauty looked strange and artificial, sparking speculation she'd undergone cosmetic procedures that had made her "decidedly different."

One eyewitness says, "She struggled to give anything more than a tight smile."

Dr. Anthony Youn, a plastic surgeon from Troy, Mich., suspects "her new appearance is due to a combination of surgery and makeup."

"Her upper eyelids look more open and tighter, a possible sign of an eyelid-lift. Her lower eyelids now blend in with her upper cheek and may be a sign of fat injections combined with makeup. Her cheeks also look a bit lifted.

"Her forehead is exceedingly smooth, which may be due to injections of a muscle relaxer like Dysport."

Adds Dr. Lyle Back, a Philadelphia-area based cosmetic surgeon, "Uh-oh! Uma should kill Bill - if he's the one who convinced her to go to the same guy that did Kenny Roger's eyes."

"I wonder if they can even close! Her nose looks to be reshaped, and although not a bad job here, in combination with the eyes, she doesn't look like Uma anymore."

In her new miniseries, Thurman plays Anouk, an aging TV writer trying to recapture her youth by dating a younger man.

But despite the mother of three's racy role, it was her appearance that kept everyone talking after the party for The Slap.

Says Dr. Steve Fallek, a New Jersey-based expert, "This is very disappointing. She didn't need anything done!"
